

1. <!DOCTYPE html>

<html>

<head>

<style>

img {

display: inline-block;

}

.div1 {

height: 200px;

width: 100px;

body {

background-image: url('1.jpg');

background-repeat: no-repeat;

background-attachment: fixed;

background-size: 100% 100%;

background-position: center;

}

.top-left {

position: absolute;

height: 15px;

width: 15px;

top: 0;

left: 0;

}

• top-right {

position: absolute;

height: 15%;

width: 15%;

top: 0;

right: 0;

}

</style>

</head>

<body>

(div class = "div1" >

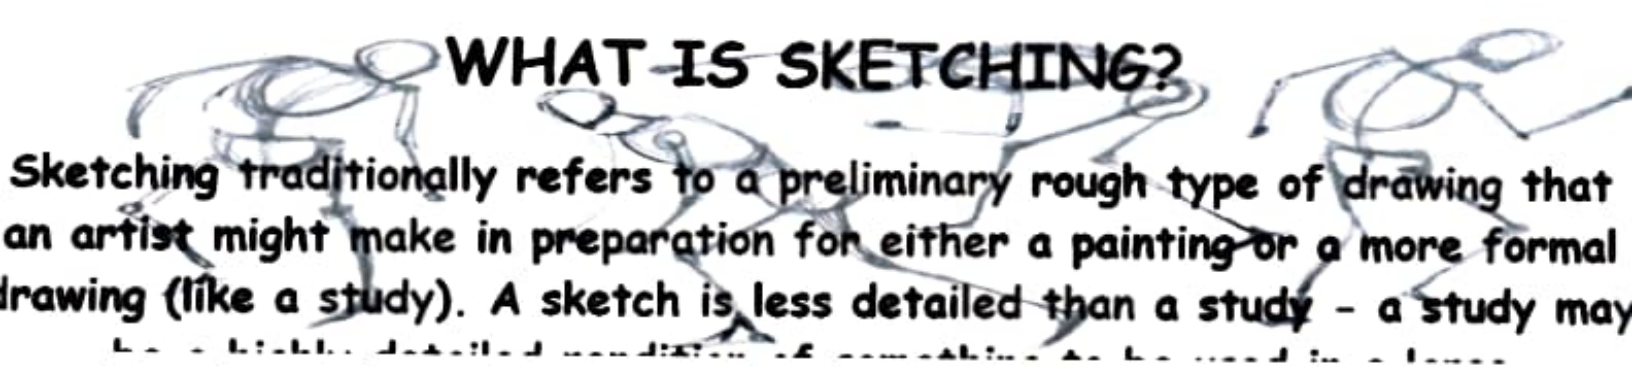

(img src = "2.jpg" alt = "blank" class = "top-left")

(img src = "3.jpg" alt = "blank" class = "top-right")

</body>

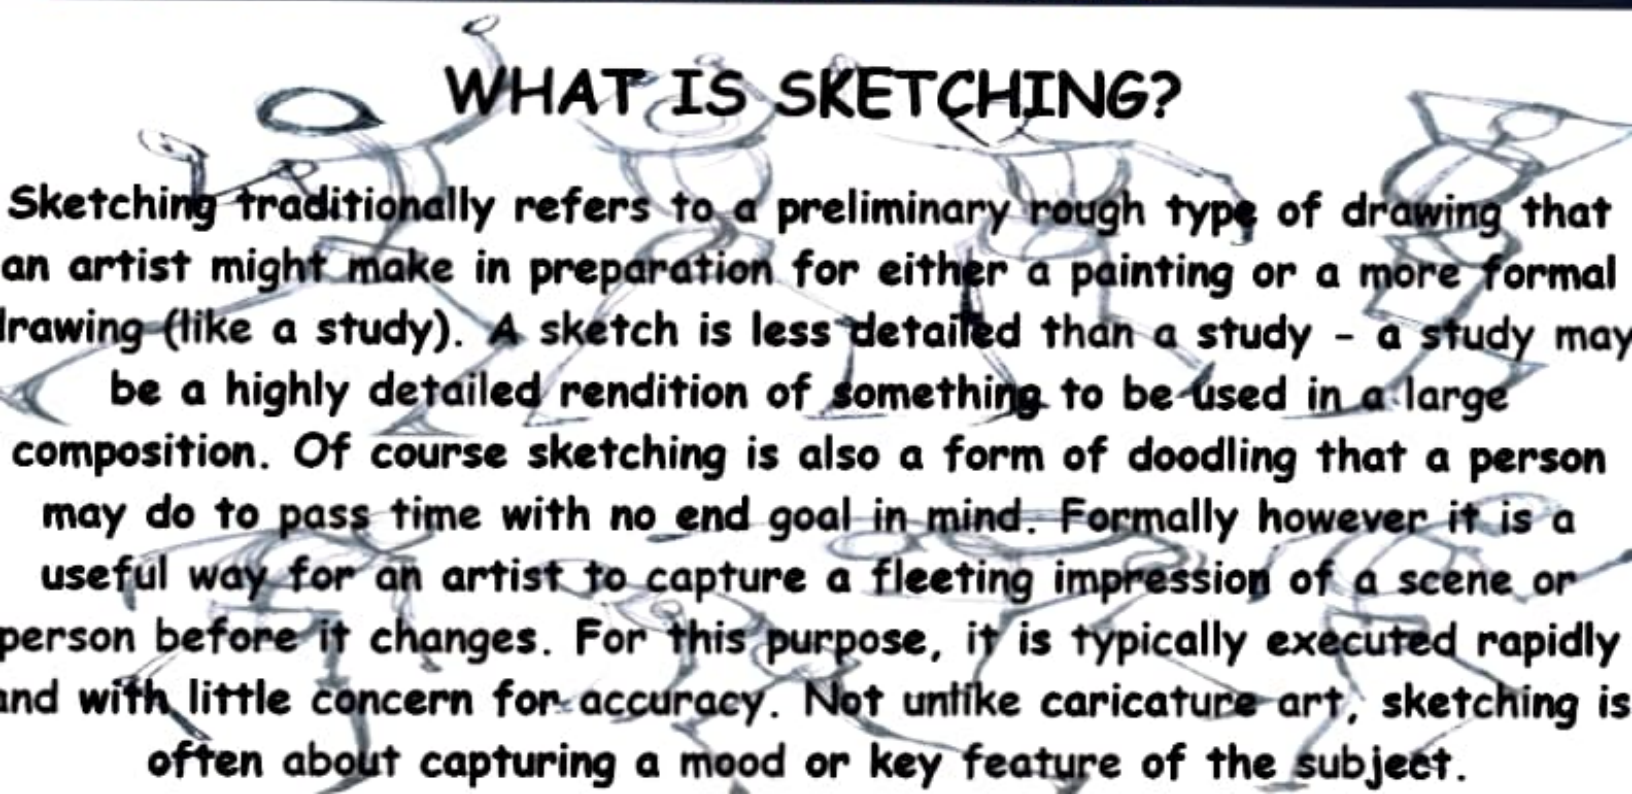

</html>

WHAT IS SKETCHING?

Sketching traditionally refers to a preliminary rough type of drawing that an artist might make in preparation for either a painting or a more formal drawing (like a study). A sketch is less detailed than a study - a study may be a highly detailed rendition of something to be used in a larger work.

Sketching traditionally refers to a preliminary rough type of drawing that an artist might make in preparation for either a painting or a more formal drawing (like a study). A sketch is less detailed than a study - a study may be a highly detailed rendition of something to be used in a larger

WHAT IS SKETCHING?

Sketching traditionally refers to a preliminary rough type of drawing that an artist might make in preparation for either a painting or a more formal drawing (like a study). A sketch is less detailed than a study - a study may be a highly detailed rendition of something to be used in a large composition. Of course sketching is also a form of doodling that a person may do to pass time with no end goal in mind. Formally however it is a useful way for an artist to capture a fleeting impression of a scene or person before it changes. For this purpose, it is typically executed rapidly and with little concern for accuracy. Not unlike caricature art, sketching is often about capturing a mood or key feature of the subject.

Sketching traditionally refers to a preliminary rough type of drawing that an artist might make in preparation for either a painting or a more formal drawing (like a study). A sketch is less detailed than a study - a study may be a highly detailed rendition of something to be used in a large composition. Of course sketching is also a form of doodling that a person may do to pass time with no end goal in mind. Formally however it is a useful way for an artist to capture a fleeting impression of a scene or person before it changes. For this purpose, it is typically executed rapidly and with little concern for accuracy. Not unlike caricature art, sketching is often about capturing a mood or key feature of the subject.